

CURIOS ARE HOBBY OF F. ROOSEVELT

Assistant Secretary of Navy Collects Relics of the Sea.

WASHINGTON, April 21.—Franklin D. Roosevelt, assistant secretary of the navy, has a hobby for everything connected with the sea. Since coming to Washington he has gathered together a remarkable collection of curios of all sorts, associated with the various phases of American naval history. These consist of old swords, uniforms, prints and a hundred other things.

His latest find and the one he thinks the best yet is what appears to be the original model of the long famous frigate Constitution. This model was found the other day in the attic of an ancient Washington mansion, for several generations the home of a well known naval family. The model itself is in a perfect state of preservation, but Mr. Roosevelt will have to send it to the Washington navy yard to have the rigging and spars restored. It's a hard thing nowadays to find an old sail who can restore the rigging of the old sailing ships. Two years ago the navy department spent months finding experts who could restore the old frigate Constitution, now station ship at Newport, R. I. She was brought down to Baltimore to participate in the celebration of the Star Spangled Banner centennial, as she was present at the bombardment of Fort Mifflin in 1814.

Of Value to Experts.

Dandruff Soon Ruins the Hair

Girls—If you want plenty of thick, beautiful, glossy, silky hair do by all means get rid of dandruff, for it will starve your hair and ruin it if you don't.

It doesn't do much good to try to brush or wash it out. The only sure way to get rid of dandruff is to dissolve it. When you destroy it entirely, to do this you must use four ounces of ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning, most if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it.

You will find, too, that all itching and disfigure of the scalp will stop, and your hair will look and feel a hundred times better. You can get liquid arvon at any drug store. It is inexpensive and four ounces is all you will need, no matter how much dandruff you have. This simple remedy never fails.—Advt.

of the Constitution, the work done two years ago will be of value to the experts who will edit the model of the Constitution. It is still kept afloat in Boston, where it has been considered a sort of national shrine ever since Oliver Wendell Holmes wrote the stirring poem that saved the gallant old craft from destruction, more than a generation ago.

The Constitution is probably the most loved ship the American navy ever had. The finding of the model of the craft has aroused keen interest among naval officers, especially those of the older school, scores of whom served on the ship in their midshipman days. She became a school ship at Annapolis in 1849. At that time her executive officer was Lieut. John H. Upshur, now a retired rear admiral, still hale and hearty, in Washington, though nearing the century mark. Those who served on the old frigate have come to be known as "the brood of the Constitution." Her arrival at Annapolis in 1860 marked a new departure in American naval instruction. For the first time then, the youngsters were kept separate from the "oldsters," as the upper classmen were called. Some of the famous naval heroes who served on the Constitution were Cassin, Coffin, Davis, Bob Evans, Harris, McGregor, Sigbee and Sands.

AGENTS AND KEY MEN ORGANIZE IN ILLINOIS

Will Present Scale to Head of Chicago, Terre Haute and Southeastern.

International News Service.

DANVILLE, Ill., April 21.—It was announced Thursday that the Order of Railroad Telegraphers had succeeded in organizing the agents and telegraph operators of the Chicago, Terre Haute and Southeastern (John R. Walsh) railway and would present a scale of wages to the president of the company, Myron J. Carpenter, within the next few weeks.

The organization was effected by J. P. McConachie of Marshall, Ill., a telegrapher on the Cairo division of the Big Four and one of the members of the general committee of the Big Four.

Humanitarian Cult is Doing Great Work

By Ella Wheeler Wilcox.

Copyright, 1916, Star Co.

The land which gave birth to Tolstoi possesses an atmosphere which seems to breed genius. On every hand we hear it, see it, and find it in our midst. A young Russian boy is now attracting the attention of the musical world with his marvelous achievements at the age of 15, and he is but one of many whose genius is expressed through the medium of music.

Misha Applebaum, the founder and leader of the Humanitarian Cult, is a young Russian, whose head above his ears looks like the bust of Shakespeare, and whose wonderful mentality has turned in the direction of humanitarianism.

Born in Russia in comparative wealth, sudden reverses left this young man when a youth dependent upon his own resources. In four years he passed through many positions. These experiences were in America, whither the young man had come to seek his fortune.

On the 9th of November, 1914, Mr. Applebaum went to the owner of a motion picture theater and had a talk with him. After he had finished he gave the young man the free use of his house. Mr. Applebaum printed circulars and announced a meeting for Sunday morning, and invited 40 of his friends. Owing to rain at the hour of the meeting, 20 strangers were prevailed upon to seek shelter in the building, and to the surprise and delight of Mr. Applebaum, every one ended by joining his band.

Referring to this meeting, he says: "It has always been a question in my mind whether it was I who spoke that day or the spirit of the sweet fragrance of my mother's memory."

The object of the Humanitarian Cult, which was started on that rainy November morning, is to develop between individuals a proper sense of responsibility, to develop a spirit of helping mankind from a sense of duty.

It is against the system of capital, that creates poverty and then, under the cloak of philanthropy, tries to keep its victim from actually starving.

The Cult, which was founded on Nov. 15, 1914, now has a total membership of 16,000.

The object of the Cult is to uplift ourselves, so that we may create an environment that will permit every one to rise to our then uplifted level.

The Humanitarian Cult has no desire to establish any new religion nor is it interested in the form of religion its members practice. It recognizes only one religion—"Every man's." The spirit of kindness and love, and consequently is non-sectarian.

It has no officers, and its members belong to the "Four Hundred" as well as to the other extreme the "down and outers." All are equally welcome.

The founder says: "It does not cost any money to be a member of the Cult. We do not permit collections nor contributions, and we ask that no money be sent to us, as we do not wish to assume the responsibility of returning it."

"We are inclusive and not exclusive. The only qualification necessary is a desire to be just human and of some assistance to our fellow men. We do not publish the names of the members nor the names of the applicants for assistance.

"We have up to date relieved 5,777 persons, provided 267 with positions, helped 24 ex-convicts and 15 drunkards—nearly all victims of a faulty economic environment.

"Gradually the territory of relief has been extended. It now includes 50th to 100th and 25th st., from Elginth av., to the river, west.

"We provide food, clothes, and medicine first and then investigate. "We wish to inform everyone that we do not care to receive old clothes. Whatever clothes the members choose to give to the needy is a matter for them to decide, but we do not believe in distributing discarded clothes. It does not help the unfortunate to regain or keep his self respect.

"We again ask our members not to send us cases outside of this district, as we cannot handle them. A good many write notes and ask us to take some cases as personal favors. We are not doing this work as a favor to anyone; we are doing it as a selfish pleasure to ourselves.

"But if we attempt to help the needy of the entire city, before we are able to cope with such a large army, we could find ourselves without the time to do real work, and we prefer to stick to one territory and do the work there effectively.

"We can now make the statement that we have relieved every applicant in our district and that no one need be in want in that territory. "If a member feels able and requests it, we send him an unfortunate to care for, and he provides whatever is necessary. In case the burden becomes heavy some other good soul takes up the work.

"If, however, a person is kindly inclined but has not the time to personally look after the unfortunate some other member does the work, and the bills for merchandise for any amount he specifies, are sent him and he sends checks to the stores.

"In this way not one cent is wasted, and, since everything is obtained with special discounts, for every dollar spent by the member about one dollar and a quarter is delivered to the unfortunate.

"We ask you to cooperate with us."

The headquarters of the Humanitarian Cult is at 1790 Broadway. There is just one thing the enterprising young man ought to do. He should identify himself with the single tax movement. That is the great means of removing the causes which lead to poverty.
